Helston Forensics comprises a specialist forensic firearms training laboratory run by forensic experts to provide a unique firearms training and analytical forensic facility.

Our experts have decades of experience in the field of forensic ballistic incident reconstruction both throughout the UK and Internationally.

Many of our clients over the years have encountered pseudo 'experts' who proclaim to understand the application of ballistic science to law, however in many cases we have been able to successfully review and present previously misunderstood and misinterpreted forensic evidence.

Forensic Ballistics is a specialist skill that requires specific dedication to learn and correctly perform. As experts in the field we are determined to see high quality analytical scientific review prevail over misinformed, dangerous, unscientific conjecture which is subsequently presented as scientific fact.

We have seen a vast increase in the number of 'cold' cases in recent years that we have successfully reviewed and presented to court.

Our new Forensic Ballistic Incident – Case Review Service (FBI-CRS) provides a quick turn around cost-effective assessment of any ballistic case, including cold cases.

The service is specifically designed so that we can consider any presented case and offer an experienced, unbiased, analytical review of the situation and what we may be able to offer as part of a full case. We will advise whether we believe there is a potential for further evidence review or if we do not believe that any further forensic assessment will be supportive.

Our aim is to bring peace of mind and ensure competent expert forensic ballistic analysis is applied to any case regardless of the circumstances.

If you have a case that you feel would benefit from a forensic ballistic case review, please contact us.

Reviews are undertaken by reviewing case notes, this allows us to identify any further potential forensic work that may be required.

After the review is undertaken we will have a full discussion with you explaining what further work will determine, and should you wish to proceed with the further forensic work we will prepare a quotation.

The review cost is quoted upon receiving an outline of the brief, the costs are very competitive for an overview where options are explored. For complex ballistic reconstruction detailed quotes are prepared in advance of any work undertaken.

Initial contact discussions are free of charge. Our aim is to offer a 7 day response to all enquiries, and it goes without saying all correspondence and discussions are strictly private and confidential.

Please note: we are not lawyers or barristers, any private party may need to instruct a legal representative to take a case to court depending on our findings. If your case is linked to a potential appeal it is advisable to discuss any actions with your legal team in the first instance.
